

Privacy Policy

Your privacy is important to us. We only use the information you provide about yourself and your company when using this website to answer your enquiry or to help us improve our service to you. We do not share this information with any third party except to the extent necessary to answer your enquiry if that enquiry requires the involvement of a third party. We use return e-mail addresses to answer the e-mail enquiries we receive. Such addresses are not used for any other purpose and are not shared with outside parties.

To prevent unauthorised access, maintain data accuracy, and ensure the correct use of information, we have put in place appropriate physical, electronic and managerial procedures to safeguard and secure the information we collect online. Where we collect information about you on this website we will tell you how this information will be used.

This website has links to other websites. This privacy policy applies only to our website and communications. We are not responsible for privacy practices within any other websites. You should always be aware of this when you leave this website and we encourage you to read the privacy statement on any other website that you visit.

We may keep a record of any contacts you have with us. We may use the information that you provide for record keeping, statistical, or research purposes. We may store information you have provided so that we may contact you with further legal updates and information about our services which may be of interest to you or your organisation. If you wish to receive this further information by e-mail or fax you will be asked to check the appropriate box to indicate your consent to our contacting you by these methods. Otherwise we will only send information to you by post.

You have the right to request a copy of any personal information that we hold about you. You can request this by emailing us at info@cotswoldfamilylaw.co.uk. You will be asked for appropriate identification when you request copies of personal information.

You have the right at any time to ask us not to contact you for marketing materials by e-mail or at all. If in the future, you decide you would like to stop receiving information from us, please e-mail us at info@cotswoldfamilylaw.co.uk.